Dear Industry Colleagues:

The Fundamentals of Musculoskeletal Ultrasound course will be held March 14-16, 2025, at the Hard Rock Hotel in San Diego, California. I would like to invite you to participate in and support this course as described within this prospectus. We will have limited support positions available and they will be secured on a first come, first served basis. This course sells out every year!

This three-day course will review musculoskeletal ultrasound of the extremities reviewing anatomy, scanning protocols, and pathology. An additional interventional workshop will allow the participant to practice needle placement under ultrasound guidance using a turkey breast and pig feet model. The course will consist of concurrent introductory and intermediate tracks. Full-course registration in the introductory track will consist of lectures and hands-on workshops that review ultrasound scanning protocols and essential pathology, while the intermediate track will consist of focused and advanced lecture topics and hands-on workshop topics specified by the participants. Alternatively, lecture only registration includes hours of comprehensive lectures from both tracks covering scanning techniques, live demonstrations, as well as advanced topics. This course will be of interest to radiologists, healthcare professionals, and sonography technologists. Those without musculoskeletal ultrasound experience, as well as those wanting to refine skills are both welcome. This course provides a comprehensive overview of musculoskeletal ultrasound with ample opportunity to discuss advanced applications during the workshops.

If you would like to support this program or have additional questions, please contact Ryan O'Sullivan at Ryan@veritasamc.com or visit www.mskultrasoundcourse.org.

Don't miss this opportunity. Secure your partnership today!

Sincerely,

Ryan O'Sullivan
